Anything of the Kind Hitherto Seen in Washington-A Rare Scene of Beauty and Brilliancy-Past Errors in the General Design Were Avoided - Everything Subservient to Floral Adornment - Penn asrlvania Avenue Turnel Into a Wilstermens of Bunting and Artistic Displays With Novel Designs.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 4 .-The decorations of the inaugural ball room in artistic beauty and harmonious treatment overshadowed anything of the kind hitherto seen in Washington. About $12,000 had been expended by the committee in the lighting and adornment of the great court of pension buildings and as a result pension buildings and as a resulf it ind undergone a complete transformation and presented to-night a rare scene of beauty and brilliancy. Past errors in the general design of the decorations were carefully avoided. The amor and shields and such medieval adorsiment, together with the great greas of red, white and blue bunting, and the familiar feature of the flags of all nations which largely predominated in the decorations in past years were disearded and an entirely new scheme of treatment; adopted making everything subservient to the floral decorations, which were in charge of J. H. Small & Sons, of Washington and New York. This change from the old to modern methods, by which a blending of effect was secured in place of carlish and startling results, was a completions success. For the ground work of the floral decorations and for the great canopy above, about fifty the great canopy above, about fifty the great canopy above, about fifty the stream of the floral decorations and for the great canopy above, about fifty the had undergone a complete transforma small electric lights canopies of white were gracefully draped to the tops of the aurrounding galleries, a number of pleasing electric light features were introduced. High up of the south wall was an American eagle, with wings outspread clurching in its talons an electric shield in colors and from its beak depended two thoral scrolls, bearing the words: "McKinley and Hobart," made from "fairy" lights, On either side and just below the eagle were large golden cornucopias filled to overflowing with American beauty roses, the whole entwined with sikk American flags, Alabama wild smilax and asparagus plumoss. The stand for the orchestration of the court, and that for the brass band at the east and each highly artistic in construction, were handsomely decorated. The band stand is fashioned after the famous golden gate at the Chicago Worfd's Fain. Semi-circles of electric lights outlined the from and above it was draped a handsome sunburst of silk American flags, whose brilliant colors stand out in full relief against a dark background. Masses of palms and other potted plants and quantities of large stemmed American beauty roses filled the corners and every available space in both stands and placques of roses, tuilps, marcissus, etc., with a number of gilded Rosaan wreaths with tracings of asparagus vine completed their adornment. Broad sath ribbon bows and streamers wherever it would enhance the effect. The fountain in the centre had been made a thing of beauty. Avoid An Early Grave.

How often do we hear, that the avenue to an early grave was opened by neglecting a slight cough and cold. Profit by this truth, and provide yourself with Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, which instantly cures all throat and lung affections. Mr. W. H. Mahoney, Lowell, Mass., writes: "I was taken sick with a bad cold. The doctors did not seem to help me, and everybody said I was getting consumption, when a relative recommended Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. I got a bottle and it helped me, and after taking two bottles I was cured, to the surprise of everybody. I shall always recommend it to my friends, na I know it to be a sure cure." Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is sold everywhere for 25 cents. Don't accept a substitute.

A spray of six or eight lights was thrown out in graceful curves from each and depending from them were as many more sung losely at anequal lengths against the white fronts of the pillars. The effect was unique. Viewed from an upper gatlery to-night, the brilliant lights, the green and white and gold of the decorations, the sheen of the rich gowns of the dancers combined to present a scene scarcely to be surpassed. The promenade music which preceded the ball was furnished by Victor Herbert's Twenty-second Regiment band, of New York, and Haley's Washington orchestra, playing alternate numbers. CITY DECORATIONS. A Wealth of Bunting and a Wilderness of Artistic Design.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 4.—The center of interest in the decorations of the city is the avenue. Pennsylvania avenue, stretching for an unbroken sheet of asphalt 150 feet broad and a mile long from the foot of the capitol to the foot of the treasury, and thence, af ter a short break at Fifteenth street for ter a short break at Fifteenth street for another mile and a half past the north front of the treasury, past the white house, and the state, war and navy departments to Washington circle. There the inaugural procession turned on its backward march past the reviewing stand of the grand marshal on K street. It is one of the most remarkable thoroughfares among the capitals of the nations, and its decoration for the American Olympiad is a matter of long thought and a great expenditure of money.

The great trough of buildings from the capitol to the treasury, one of the most magnificent vistas in the world of cities, cannot brook any cheap adornment, and this year the decorations are abundant. The avenue is a wealth of bunding. There are flags of all nations waving from the windows or floating from every available flag pole, probably every flag in the international code is represented from the stars and stries and the blue cross of St. George to the white elephant of Siam and the black and yellow dragon flag of China.

The presence of the crowd on the streets lend a good deal of brilliancy and movemen: to the scene and detracts from the need of excessive decoration. From house front to house front, except in the centre, where the police have cleared a way, there is a solid mass of humanity, many colored, and constantly shifting; a veritable human carpet for the great avenue through which the food for the inaugural procession is to old.

Above the heads of the crowd on either side rise the walls of the houses, enriched with every variety of flag and streamer that the mind of the resident property-holder can devise. There are sunbursts of red, white and blue under almost every window sill, and where the national colors are wanting there are the yellow and black of Russia, the double-headed eagle of Austria, the red, white and green of the Barbary states, and every other national combination that would naturally suggest itself to the naturalized copulation of a most cosmopolitan capital.

The decorations of the avenue in fact may be divided into sections from the capitol to the Washington circle. At the foot of the capitol the peace monument, the dry rock of statuary that has waited a decade for the Aaron's rod of an appropriations' committee to turn into a fountain, has been surrounded by a neat white picket fence by the careful executive committee to prevent the economical public from making a grand stand out of the grantic shoulders of Faith, I ope and Charity as they stind on a tentuir entire to the propries emission of the paint of the grantic shoulders of Faith, I ope and Charity as they stind on a tentuir entire the recommittee to prevent the economical public from making a grand stand out of the grantic shoulders of Faith, I ope and Charity as they stind

From this point to Seventh street the decorations are much the same. This is the older avenue, the section which in the days of Webster, Clay and Benton, was the fashionable boarding house section, enriched with substantial brick building in strong distinction to the remainder of the shanty capital. These "substantial brick buildings" are now insignificant two-story houses, with hip roofs and dormer windows, a relie of a bygone era. Their residents have decorated them each after his own inclination with flags from the ridge poles, banners from the second-story windows, and printed banners of welcoming to the in-coming administration, naming McKinley and Hobart personally as "the people's choice," and the "adwance agents of prosperity."

At Seventh street, one of the great husiness arteries of the city, the stands commence. The reservations on each side of the avenue have been occupied by grand stands, bannered and embattled with canvass fronts painted in imitation of brown stone, which tends to make an imposing display.

From thence to the foot of the treasury at Fifteenth street the decorations are of a slightly different character. This is the region of newer and more imposing buildings, though the avenue is not the place in Washington to find the best specimens of business architecture. But the larger stores and office buildings are wealther than those to the eastward of Seventh street, and they decorate with more of real buning and less of print muslin and cambric. Beside the banners floating from the roofs, there are streamers from the cornices to the awning rods on the sidewalk, red, white and blue most frequently, but almost as often some other gay and striking combination throwing the mere architectural features of the building in abeyance and lending a carnival air to the ordinarily prosaic structures, Garlands of red, white and blue incandescent lights are mingled with the bunting to be flashed at night into a brillian display of color, and a few shelds and painted emblems help to fill stands on the south, east and north fronts. These, with their unform sal-mon-like tint and frieze of brilliant crimson, together with their living freight of spectators, add to the decocrimson, together with their reacher freight of spectators, and to the decoration of she building.

Further on in the stretch of the avenue before the President's house, the stands are of the most classic form and substantial style. From over the white reviewing stand of the chief executive floats a hundred banners, and its snowy walls and flag draped sides make it the gem of the whole collection of reviewing stands. The others on this favored stretch of the great thoroughtare are decorated with the national colors, interspersed with laurel wreaths; golfden eagles and banners of every-hue, shape and size. The stretch of the areture past the President's reviewing stand is the most choice bit of the whole panorama, through which the great procession moves, and thence westward the decorations fade gradually away.

The reader can safely trust to the advice offered by Mr. Geo. Friedel. of No. 40. Indiana street. Read it. he says: "Until 4 or 5 years ago my kidneys never caused me any trouble but I began to be troubled with backache and soreness of the muscles and when I would expose myself or catch a cold it would expose myself or catch a cold it would sattle at once in my kidneys. I resorted to the ordinary home remedies and for a time I would be apparently free from it only to find it reappear with renewed vigor. Along with it there was a distressing and annoying urinary weakness and say condition grew such that I had to do something. I then tried doctors but got no lasting benefit. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for sale at The Logau Drug Co., I thought if they would only fulfill half their promises they would help me, so I got a box. To my surprise in a remarkably short time my trouble left me, It seemed like magic; I have had no return of it since. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all."

ABOUT THE BIBLES

On Which Presidents Have Taken the Oath of Office.

THE VERY HANDSOME VOLUME

To Which McKinley Placed His Lips Presented to litm by the African Methodist Episcopal Church-Cleveland Used a Bible Given to Ilim by His Mother in His Youth-Some of the Significant Verses that the Lips of Other Presidents Have Touched in Being Inducted Into

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 4. The bible on which Mr. McKinley took the oath of office as President of the United States is an unusually hand some and costly copy of the testa-ments, made especially for the occasion in Ohio, and presented to the new President by Bishop Arnett, of Wilberforce College, a colored institution in the Buckeye State, on behalf of the African Methodist Episcopal church. Its covers are of blue morocco with satin linings, white satin panels and gilt edges. A gold plate in the centre will be engraved with the following inscription: "William McKinley, President of the United States of America, inaugurated March 4, 1887."

The book on which he was swor into the highest office within the gift of the people was a matter of quite decided sentiment with Presid. Mr. Cleveland asked decided sentiment with President Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland asked the privilege of being sworn on a little red bible which had been given to him by his mother in his boyhood when he first left the family roof tree, and he took the oath at the beginning of both of his presidential terms on this book which he treasures fondly.

The custom, however, has been for the United States supreme court to furnish the bible on which the President takes his official oath, and this tradition has been carried out by the clerk of the court ever since that tribunal was established, except on the two occasions when President Cleveland was installed in office. Mr. Mc-Kenney, clerk of the supreme court, who has held the bible on which Garfield was sworn, and every President who has held the bible on which Gar-field was sworn, and every President after him, has always marked the verse which the President touched with his lips and after the inaugural has presented the book made historic by this event, to the President or to his

When Mr. McKenney presented to Mrs. Hayes the volume on which her husband had been sworn, she inquired what passage he had kissed. The verse recited, in substance. "That his enemies encounpassed him like bees, but he would destroy them," Mrs. Hayes remarked that President Hayes would destroy no one.

he would destroy them." Mrs. Hayes remarked that President Hayes would destroy no one.

At the second inauguration of President Grant the clerk opened the bible and handed it to Chief Justice Chase, who held it to the lips of the President. They rested upon these verses from the eleventh chapter of Isalah:

"And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of counsel and highly the spirit of counsel and highly the spirit of the Lord."

"And shall make him of quick understanding in the fear of the Lord; and he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears."

The first inauguration of George Washington in the Federal building, in New York, on April 39, 1789, was delayed by the fallure to provide a bible. Just as the arrival of Washington was announced to Congress, Chancellor Livingstone discovered that there was no bible in the building. He was master of St. John's lodge No. I, of Free Masons, and happened to remember that there was a bible in the lodge room. A messenger was quickly sent to bring the book and it is preserved to the present day among the relies of the lodge.
